ok, so here's the deal.

In early August I had to self-inject Enoxaparin (blood thinner)
so I did 10 of 'em at $90 my cost.

They said "Not thin enough, do two more."

I picked up my prescription and lo x behold they had included 10, not 2.

I took two and a week later returned the remainder and got a refund of $63.65.

The very next week they said "Oops, you need 'em."

But now they're gonna cost me $129! what?

So I said "I'll do without, I ain't takin 'em."

Then they called and said "you need 'em so we'll give you some returns of other people that are nearing an expiration date. And we'll do it at no charge."

So you see, I have a windfall of $63.65 that I don't really deserve.

Please find my enclosed check for $63.65
Keep up your heroic efforts!

Duane
